Description

The vessel is pear-shaped, formally close to biconical (or sphero-conical). The throat is low, the rims are bent to the middle and have a rounded section. The upper part of the body is covered with a monochrome painting in the form of four spirals, each of which twists around four circles. In the center of two opposite circles there are small conical plaques. The other two circles contain black pointed oval shapes inside. Triangles are located near the base of S-shaped spirals.
